Kidnapped Swissair Executive Released

Kurt Schmid, the Swissair general manager for Latin America who was kidnapped on 22 October by unknown individuals, was released on 29 November and is out of Argentina, according to a company spokesman. Swissair did not provide further details on Schmid's release, but sources close to Schmid's family said he was freed only after a large ransom was paid. The identity of the kidnappers is still not known. (For further details on the kidnapping, see the 7 November issue, page 9) (UNCLASSIFIED)

Soviet Jewish Transit Facility at Schoenau Castle is Closed

The government of Austria closed the Schoenau Castle transit facility for Soviet Jews on 10 December, fulfilling a promise it made to two Arab terrorists on 28 September in exchange for the release of four hostages (see 30 October issue, page 1). The Schoenau complex, a former Hapsburg summer retreat, had been in operation since 1965 under the direct control of the Jewish Agency, the Israeli organization charged with the immigration of all Jews to Israel. The Jewish Agency had cared for more than 80,000 Soviet Jews during its eight years of operation at Schoenau and had provided the Soviet emigrants with rest and medical attention before they resumed their journey to Israel.

While publicly acknowledging the closure of Schoenau, the Austrian government with little fanfare opened another transit facility 25 miles south of Vienna in the village of Wollersdorf. The new facility is called the Lower Austrian Provincial Red Cross Aid Station for Refugees and Other Transients. After the arrival of the Soviet Jews in Vienna by train from the USSR, the Red Cross transports to Wollersdorf the emigrants in need of medical attention and those physically exhausted from the long train ride. Once at the aid station they receive proper medication and needed rest before they leave by air for Israel.

The residents of Wollersdorf and Israeli officials have expressed concern over the location and physical security of the new transit facility located there. Village leaders have sent telegrams to the government stating their fears that the presence of the Soviet Jews in Wollersdorf would seriously endanger the safety of the 2500 inhabitants of the village. Israeli officials told a U.S. newsman that the Wollersdorf aid station is vulnerable to attack by Arab terrorists because it is bordered by a large ditch, a highway and many private houses, all of which could be used for attacks. These officials also pointed out a hill overlooking the facility which could be used as a staging area for operations directed against the aid station directly below. (UNCLASSIFIED)

DATE	PLACE	EVENT
26 November 1973	Mexico, Guadalajara	Three bombs explode in Guadalajara. Home-made bombs caused considerable damage to the Bank of London branch, the Commercial Bank and to a monument. No personal injuries were reported. A fourth bomb was found by firemen before it exploded. The police and military authorities have not issued any official communique. (UNCLASSIFIED)
6 December 1973	Argentina, Buenos Aires	U.S. businessman kidnapped. Victor E. Samuelson, General Manager of the Esso Oil Refinery at Campana, was kidnapped at gunpoint while having lunch at the company club restaurant. Slogans painted on the wall indicated the kidnappers are members of the ERP. (See Articles.) (UNCLASSIFIED)
7 December 1973	Israel, Tel Aviv	Letter bomb from Italy intercepted. A letter bomb mailed in Italy was discovered by the Tel Aviv communications office. The letter was sent to an address in Jerusalem and looked like a normal letter. An examination proved it to be booby trapped. (UNCLASSIFIED)

NOTES

Continued Detention of Three Arab Terrorists in Rome

The Italian magistrate on 17 December refused to grant provisional liberty to three remaining Arab terrorists from a group of five arrested on 5 September in Ostia in possession of SA-7 (STRELA) missiles, according to an Italian newspaper. The missiles were purportedly to be used in attacking an El Al aircraft. Two of the group were released on provisional liberty on 30 October. (See the 21 November issue, page 9, and the 7 November issue, page 7.)

The court process was interrupted by the announcement of the terrorist attack at Fiumicino, which caused increased security measures to be enforced at the trial. The hearing was resumed after the interruption, and the magistrate postponed additional discussion and sentencing until 28 December. (UNCLASSIFIED)

DATE	PLACE	EVENT
11 December 1973	New York, New York	French government offices attacked. Two bricks were hurled through the first-floor windows of a building housing the French Press and Information Office, the office of the Counselor for Cultural Affairs of the French Embassy and the French National Center for Scientific Research. An anonymous caller to UPI stated the windows were smashed by the Jewish Defense League to protest "cowardly French submission to Arab oil blackmail." (UNCLASSIFIED)
14 December 1973	France, Marseille	Algerian consulate bombed. A bomb exploded in the entrance of the Algerian consulate, killing three persons and injuring an additional twenty, ten of them seriously. The perpetrator of the incident is unknown, but an eyewitness said the bomb was thrown into the consulate by a man. (UNCLASSIFIED)
7 December 1973	United Kingdom, England	Letter bombs explode in London. Two letter bombs were received in London, and one of them blew off the right thumb of an aide to Queen Elizabeth. The bomb was in a hollowed-out paperback book delivered to the aide's home. (See Notes.) (UNCLASSIFIED)
